

Short bio – Dra. Moyra McClure

Dra. Moyra McClure is an optometrist who specializes in clinical low vision care and low vision education. She is passionate about the delivery of high quality patient centered low vision support that is underpinned by robust low vision clinical research.

Working in the Belfast Trust, Northern Ireland, Moyra delivers low vision services to adults and children. Also employed at Ulster University, Moyra is an Optometry lecturer; this role involves teaching of undergraduate optometry students in low vision care and provision of an online short postgraduate low vision course to qualified optometrists, dispensing opticians or orthoptists. At Ulster University, Moyra co-ordinates an adult low vision service and works collaboratively with local statutory and voluntary sight support services.
